“ While I didn't know Chris very well, Murdoch and my son are very good friends. To Murdoch: I know it doesn't seem like much, but having lost my dad when I was 23, I understand how hard this is for you. You have my deepest sympathies and if you want a hug, just ask, okay?

“ Dear Will and Christine, I am so sorry for your loss. Children aren't supposed to leave this earth before the parents.

“ During a Time when I had No friends Back in Elementary School, Despite us Originally not getting along we found Common Ground and Became Good Friends, It's a Shame that we drifted apart when We got Older and Life got in the way, But Chris to Me was always a True Friend and A Good Man with a Good Heart. There are not many like Chris in the World But for the Time he was on this Planet, for Family, For Friends, and Everyone in Between he will Truly be missed. Say Hi to those who've passed on before us For us Chris. You won't be forgotten and We Love You.

Thank you for Being my First Real Friend.

“ The world was a bright place with Chris in it. On June 29th, we said goodbye to a man whose joy, creativity, and warmth touched everyone who knew him. Though his time here was cut short, he lived with a spirit that made life feel fuller.

Chris was a devoted father to his son Murdoch, who was the pride of his life. He is deeply mourned by his parents, Christine and Willard Meyer, and siblings Clinton, Willard Jr. (Mary), Joshua (Caitlin), Zachary, and Chloe (Gregory). His nieces and nephews - Hannah, Reuben, Abigail, Sydney, and Valerie - will sorely miss him.

From childhood, Chris was a free spirit. He never came straight home after school preferring instead to find adventure, explore new places, or spend time at a friend's house.

Chris was a gifted artist with a mind full of worlds waiting to be created. He could bring entire universes to life with his storytelling creating fierce creatures and vivid scenes. He used this creativity as a Dungeon Master in Dungeons & Dragons and while playing Warhammer.

Chris had a deep love for music often writing and recording songs on his guitar to share with those who knew him. One line he wrote stands out: “Never thought I'd live to see the day I die.”

Though his journey has ended, Chris remains forever in our memories. He will be deeply missed, but never forgotten.
